1 Measure the width, depth, and length of your mattress if you are sewing fitted sheets with fabric. If you are using a flat sheet, you only need to measure the depth of the mattress. 2 Cut a piece of fabric based on your measurements. It should measure the width of the mattress, plus 2 x the depth, plus an additional 16 inches (40 cm) for seam allowances and tuck-in (8 inches on each side), and the length of the mattress, plus 2 x the depth, plus 16 inches (40 cm). Width + (2 x depth) + 16" and Length + (2 x depth) + 16" Advertisement 3 Prepare your corner markings. Along one outer edge, measure over the depth of the mattress plus 8 inches (20 cm) from the corner of the fabric. Mark this spot. Measure up the depth of the mattress plus 8 inches from the marked spot. Put a dot at the spot. Draw a line connecting that dot to the mark on the edge of the sheet. Draw another line connecting that dot to the mark on the other side. This gives you a square on the corner of the fabric. 4 Cut out the square, and follow the lines you drew. Repeat on the other 3 corners of the fabric or sheet. 5 Fold the fabric, and bring the cut edges of each corner together. The right sides of the homemade fitted sheet should face in. 6 Pin the cut edges together at each corner. 7 Make bedding by sewing the cut edges together with a .5-inch (1 cm) seam allowance. 8 Continue sewing fitted sheets by folding the hems over .5 inch (1 cm). You can skip this step if you are using a flat sheet. 9 Fold the hems over another .5 inch (1 cm), and pin. 10 Sew the hems of the homemade fitted sheet. Leave 1-inch (2.5 cm) wide gaps about 8 inches (20 cm) away from the sewn-together corners on each side of the sheet. This allows you to thread the elastic through to make the sheet fitted. 11 Cut 4 pieces of elastic that measure 16-inches (40 cm) long. 12 Thread 1 piece of elastic through the hem in 1 corner of the sheet. Pin 1 end of the elastic to the gap on 1 side. Attach a safety pin to the end of the elastic to help you push it through the hemmed edge of the sheet. Pull the elastic so that the sheet corner gathers around it. Pin the other end of the elastic to the sheet on the other end. 13 Sew the elastic in place on both sides of the corner. 14 Finish making bedding by threading the elastic through the hems on the remaining 3 corners. Advertisement Add New Question Question I'm trying to make a bassinet fitted sheet. It's 19 1/2" wide, and 1" high and 33" long with rounded corners. How do I modify the measurements of the fabric and fitted corners to accommodate this bassinet? Most beds have rounded corners. When you insert the elastic, it will make the corners fit a rounded or square corner. Question How do I make a king size fitted sheet? The same as shown above. Because you are measuring the bed, it doesn't make any difference if it's a queen, twin, double or king bed. The measurements are what you go by. Question I'm making a bassinet fitted sheet and the mattress is only like 1.5" thick. Do I still add the additional 16 inches? You will probably only need 8 or 10 inches. With such a thin mattress, you won't need as much fabric. Question What fabric should I use to make sheets? Best sheeting fabric is made from 100% cotton, which offers comfort and breathability, and is ideal for making luxury bedding. The fabric comes in widths of 240 cm (wide enough to cover a king-size bed). Question How can I make a king fitted sheet out of twin long sheets? Take the measurements needed to make the king fitted sheet. Subtract that from the measurements of the twin long sheets. Sew the difference around the edges of the twin long sheets so that the seams will not be on the top of the bed. Question Can I convert a fitted king size sheet to make a fitted queen size sheet? Yes. You can cut down the middle of the king size fitted sheet, from top to bottom. Measure a queen size sheet/bed, making allowances for the seam, and sew. Question Will this pattern work for a corner cut mattress in a camper? Yes. It will work great. Question My queen fitted sheet doesn't have deep enough pockets for my double pillow top mattress. How can I make the pockets deeper using another piece of fabric? Determine how much needs to be added (plus seams) for depth (I needed to add 4 inches for depth so used about 5 1/2" wide to allow for a seam on both edges). Cut two pieces of new fabric about 2 inches longer than the length of the mattress (for the sides) and two pieces about 2 inches longer than the width (for the head and foot). Put the fitted sheet on the bed and mark a cutting line on the fitted sheet showing where to insert the new pieces; cut it, saving the part with elastic. Sew the four pieces to the sheet, joining and trimming at the corners. Join the piece with elastic to the other edge of the inserted fabric. Question How do I make two fitted sheets? Measure both length and width. Add the depth of the mattress and at least 8 inches to each measurement. Rather than using geometry, lay the fabric out on the floor and place the mattress on top. Tie a string to a fabric marker and cut it off at depth+8 inches. Hold the end of the string at the edge of the mattress and use the marker to draw a circle around the mattress. Trim here. Cut a single slit to thread elastic through the entire edge and just let the sheet form natural pleats. Question I have a California King Split. Can I make 2 twin XL sheets from a fitted California sheet? No. A California King Split mattress has a different dimension than a twin XL mattress. The twin XL mattress is 39" x 80", but a California King Split mattress is 36" x 84". The twin XL sheet is 4" too short and 3" too wide for the California Split mattress. Perhaps you could lengthen it by piecing in scraps from narrowing the twin XL, but then you would have seams under your pillow or feet. "I've been wanting to sew my own fitted sheets for a long time, but could not find any demos that actually showed me how to do it without confusing me and making me less confident in my capacity to get it done, until I came across this page. Thank you so much. I don't have a sewing room, so I'll just have to wait until morning to get started, but now I'm more confident in being able to do it."... more Share your story September 17, 2020 By Irene Valle & filed under Sewing Blog. Fitted sheets can be pricier than flat ones and, depending on the material you want and the place you're shopping, they can even cost more than double. What's worse: sometimes fitted sheets aren't even included in bedding sets, and they can be hard to find in luxury natural fibers like durable cotton wovens or linen and hemp blends. The solution? Make your own fitted sheets from the flat ones you already have on hand. Here's how. DIY Fitted Sheets Level: Intermediate What You Need One flat bed sheet for your mattress size (or bigger) 50" in length of flat 3/16" or 1/4" elastic Matching thread Scissors Pins Tape measure Serger (optional) Rotary cutter Cutting mat Pro Tip: If you're using brand new flat sheets, pre-wash them before you cut. Otherwise, you could end up with fitted sheets that are too small, as a woven cotton can shrink significantly for a variety of reasons. Instructions 1. Measure Your Bed Make sure there's nothing on top of your bed except a mattress protector (if you use one). Measure exactly from one corded edge to the other, laying the measuring tape flat and straight on top of the mattress. Take the measurements for width, length and thickness. For a consistent look – and to make sure your fitted sheets will be on grain – snip and rip off two contiguous existing hems and measure from those raw edges. 2. Cut Your Flat Sheet Now it's time to figure out your fabric measurements so you can cut your sheet. If you want a quick shortcut, you can use this free Fitted Sheets Calculator. Simply pop the three measurements (width, length and thickness) into the calculator and you'll instantly get your fabric measurements. You can also calculate on your own, using the guidelines below: Measurement A: Width of your mattress Measurement B: Length of your mattress Measurement C: Height of your mattress Width: Start with the width of your mattress (Measurement A) and add the height twice (Measurement C x 2). Add another 5" for two seam allowances and extra fabric to slide under the mattress. This total will result in Measurement D. Length: Add the length of your mattress (Measurement B), the height twice (Measurement C x 2) and an additional 5". This total will result in Measurement E. Measurement D is the width of your fitted sheet, while Measurement E is the length. Cut your sheet to size. Pro Tip: If your fabric has a pattern printed on it, make sure to cut so it goes in the right direction! 3. Cut the Sheet's Corners Now you'll cut off each corner. The cut should be a square with a measurement of C + 3". This is measurement F. Here's an example of how your fabric measurements should look. To make it easier to see, we demonstrated the cuts you'll make to your fitted sheet on a piece of scrap paper. First, fold the fabric in half by length, then again in half by width. This will pile the four corners together in one spot. Mark measurement F on both sides, starting from the corner. Cut out the square using a rotary cutter and cutting mat. Your fabric will look like the above image after it's cut. 4. Sew the Sheet Corners With the right sides together, fold over the edges of one of the corners, matching the X and O shown in the image above. Sew from the X and O mark to the point of the missing square, using a 1/2" seam allowance. Then trim and zigzag-stitch the edge, or serge the edge with a four-thread overlock. Pro Tip: To make your fitted sheets even more durable, you can sew the corners with a French seam. Repeat for the other three corners. Then try your WIP fitted sheet on the mattress to make sure you're on the right track. 5. Attach the Elastic If you have a serger, run a three-thread overlock all around the raw edge. (As a shortcut, you can use a four-thread overlock so you don't have to pull one of the needles and one spool off!) If you don't have a serger, press the entire raw edge 1/4" toward the wrong side. Then, press a 1/2" hem toward the wrong side of the fabric. Measure 16" in both directions from each corner seam. Mark those eight spots with your fabric marker or a pin. Secure one end of the flat elastic to the wrong side of the fabric, 1/4" or more in from the overlocked hem (or the first pressed hem). Sew a few zigzag stitches, one on top of the other, using a stitch length of 0. Sew the elastic into a single layer of fabric on its wrong side. Don't sew it into a double layer, and don't sew on the right side of the fabric. This way it'll stay hidden in the casing. Select a three-step zigzag stitch on your sewing machine, using your max stitch length. Choose a width that allows you to sew onto your stretched elastic, and just barely off onto the fabric on each side. Testing on your fabric scraps is key here: for the 3/16" elastic and the machine we're using in this tutorial, a medium width of 3 works well. Here's how it should look when it's done: The easiest way to attach the elastic is to pull it as much as you can, then finger-pin it to the fabric in front of your sewing machine, using your right hand and pinning every 2"-3". Once you reach the presser foot with your right hand, stop with the needle down, pull another portion of the elastic until it's 2"-3" long, and finger-pin it again to the fabric. Each time you stop sewing, double check that your needle is down into the elastic and the fabric to keep everything in place. Don't pull the fabric, though; just keep it taut to help it feed consistently, using your left hand to guide the fabric coming out behind your presser foot. Once you reach the next 16" mark, turn your stitch length to 0 and sew a couple of stitches on top of one another to secure the elastic. Then cut the elastic. Pull the elastic and see the magic of a three-step zigzag: Repeat for the remaining three corners. 6. Add the Hem Set the stitch to a regular straight stitch (length = 4, width = 0). Starting in the middle of one long side, far from the corners, topstitch the hem all around from the wrong side. (Use the 1/2" pressed hem from the last step as a guide.) Remember to backstitch at the start and end of the seam. Good to Know: You can use a foot with a stitch guide if you want to. It'll get the job done super fast and keep your topstitch consistent. When you approach a portion with elastic, stop with the needle down, pull the fabric taut and continue topstitching. (The 1/2" pressed hem will be your BFF.) Pro Tip: If you have a square-ish bed with sides of similar but not identical measurements, sew on a marking tab. Then you won't have to guess which sides are shorter or longer when you're putting on your sheet. Ta-da! You have a new fitted sheet ready to go on the bed. Tags: fabric, home decor, sew
